

Chris Murray (left) is greeted by Rockall solo stay record breaker Nick Hancock at the end of his stint on the island.

Rockall assignment for intrepid Chris

HE may have retired from being a winchman on a rescue helicopter but action man Chris Murray, formerly of Dornoch, still manages to boldly go where few have been before!

He was recently one of the crew who went to fetch Edinburgh-based adventurer Nick Hancock from Rockall, after his 45-day record-breaking solo stay on the island. Because conditions were so good when they arrived, Chris, who lives in Stornoway, and some of the other Kilda Cruises crew, managed to clamber onto the rock and help Nick pack his gear together and get him off the famous rock.