

A series of series of summer events for Allsorts After School Club in Dornoch involved storyteller Bob Pegg working with children on a musical performance using some of the many new costumes made for a whole range of activities. Over the summer these events included dance and music workshops with Viking, crofting and fishing themes. Here he is with, clockwise from front, Dylan Ross, Alex Coombes, Alex Wright, Jessica Hillin, Megan Cowan and Beth Cowan. Picture: Gavin Wright, Dornoch. See Dornoch news.

Summer Playscheme - The Allsorts After-School Club ran a successful summer playscheme in the West Church Hall. The project was supported by Highland 2007 as part of the Year of Highland Culture and the programme was based on Highland heritage, in partnership with Historylinks Museum.

Through dressing-up, storytelling, art workshops, acting, singing, dancing and visits to Historylinks the children have explored their heritage. Two themes were chosen - the Vikings, and fishing and crofting. Costumes were made by Sheila Kennard and props including fishing baskets, shields and helmets were made by Sally Wild. Art workshops were run by Sally and Jane Bregazzi and a dance workshop by Sandra Robertson.

Storyteller Bob Pegg captured the children's imagination with his tales and music, enabling them to stage a small performance in costume at the end of the day. The children learned and performed a Gaelic song, Brochan Lom, and had a porridge tasting session.

The annual day trip was to Aigas Field Centre in Beaully for a special Highland 2007 day - finding out about birds, wild flowers, beavers and hut circles.

The costumes and props created for the project will be stored at Historylinks for use by visiting school groups and then used by Allsorts during the