

The Carnegie Club at Skibo Castle

A private residential Golf and Sporting Club with an international membership limited by invitation.

Easily reached from London, the Club stands in its own seven thousand acre Estate in one of the last great wilderness areas of Europe, the Highlands of Scotland.

Skibo Castle has two outstanding private Golf Courses.

SKIBO CASTLE

photographed by Mrs. Andrew Carnegie

The Carnegie Club currently has two Outposts.

Stapleford Park, a magnificent stately home provides, in the beautiful Leicestershire countryside (one hour by train from London), a superb English country Outpost with all the traditions and activities of a grand sporting estate.

The Club's London Outpost is located at 69, Cadogan Gardens, providing members and their guests with a delightful residential "pied à terre".

The Club is actively pursuing the establishment of further unique and exclusive Outposts overseas, all of which will afford superb comfort, fine cuisine, sporting activities and appropriate hospitality, synonymous with being a house guest of Andrew Carnegie in the grand Edwardian era.