The charm of Dornoch's sequestered squares

In which we extend a word of welcome

If already you are numbered amongst those who — some would say — have been fortunate enough to savour the pleasures of this restful holiday resort you will have experienced the warmth of our welcome. To those who have not yet partaken of our hospitality we extend a cordial invitation to visit us and share in the abundant attractions that await you. As a community we are dedicated to the task of catering for our ever increasing family of Summer guests and the numbers who return year after year are an indication of the success we have achieved.

Dornoch has its roots in the precincts of its ancient cathedral, the building of which was begun in the Thirteenth Century when the Burgh became one of the fourteen cities of Scotland. The ecclesiastical and golfing traditions of Dornoch have proved compatible and given to the Ancient and Royal Burgh a character unique amongst the county towns of Scotland.

Snugly set on the sheltered shores of the Firth, Dornoch is a delightful place for holidays, not only for the Summer but also for Spring and Autumn. You will be warmly welcomed whenever you come.
